Services: Prevent Child Abuse Georgia's helpline is the only statewide, toll free, confidential helpline dedicated to the prevention of child abuse. Callers to the helpline are seeking support, information or referrals for a variety of issues including, but not limited to counseling and support groups, DFCS reports and/or referrals, legal needs, grandparent issues, child abuse and prevention information, parenting support, personal and educational matters and community resources for emergency and financial assistance.

The helpline also responds to calls from adolescents through the agency's Need to Talk? Program, which provides youth with a confidential, safe place to find information and talk about issues of concern. In addition, the helpline is also the frontline recipient of calls from the agency's Stop It Now! Georgia campaign. This project is funded by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) and takes a public health approach to preventing child sexual abuse.

The basis of this program is education about adult and community responsibility for perpetration prevention and protecting children from sexual exploitation.
